

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Lyndall Dwaine Thompson,
Petitioner,
v.
Charles L. Ryan, et al.,
Respondents.

CV-12-00766-TUC-DCB

ORDER

This matter was referred to Magistrate Judge Bruce G. Macdonald, pursuant to the Rules of Practice for the United States District Court, District of Arizona (Local Rules), Rule (Civil) 72.1(a). On July 31, 2015, he issued a Report and Recommendation (R&R), recommending that the Court dismiss the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus.

On April 11, 2008, a jury found Petitioner, Lyndall Dwaine Thompson, guilty of second degree murder for shooting and killing his brother. On July 14, 2008, Petitioner was sentenced to the presumptive term of sixteen years imprisonment.

After the shooting, Petitioner called police and claimed the shooting was in self-defense. Prior to being interviewed by police, he was Mirandized and

1 agreed to waive his Miranda rights, act as his own attorney, and answer police
2 officer's questions if they would answer his questions. Thereafter, he made
3 incriminating statements. During the interview, police responded to his inquiries
4 regarding his brother's condition by acting like they didn't know it, but they knew
5 his brother was dead. His trial attorney did not seek to suppress the interview and 6 a redacted recording of the interview was presented to the jury. Petitioner asserts 7 that he did not see a copy of the un-redacted recording until after the trial, and 8
9 Petitioner argues that there were differences in the redacted tape recording played
10 to the jury which were so substantial as to amount to a presentation of false
11
12 evidence.
13

14 Petitioner's claim of self-defense was that he had thrown his hand gun on the 15 ground and believed his brother picked it up and was armed, and after he shot his 16 brother he also threw his SKS automatic rifle on the ground and ran away. The 17 testimony and statements from police were that they found both weapons on the 18 top of a vehicle parked in his carport. There was some confusion over whether the 19 guns were put there by the defendant or moved there by police because none of the 20 investigating officers were responsible for initially locating the gun, and the 21
22 Government in closing admitted: "we would like to know how the guns got there."
23 (Response (Doc. 11-3(A): TR at122.) Petitioner argues his counsel should have 24 investigated and discovered which officer actually found the guns and where the 25

1 guns were found because proof that the guns were found on the ground would have
2 supported his assertion of self-defense. Whereas, the guns being found together on 3 top of the vehicle totally undermined his self-defense claim.

4
5 On habeas, Petitioner raises eight (8) grounds for relief. First, Petitioner 6 alleges ineffective assistance of trial counsel due to an alleged failure to move to 7 suppress incriminating statements, which he asserts were unconstitutionally
8 obtained by police. Second, Petitioner alleges ineffective assistance of trial counsel 9 based on an alleged failure to move for additional disclosure and/or failure to 10 investigate who found his weapons and where the guns were located when found.
11 The remainder of Petitioner's claims relate to his assertion that the State used false
12 evidence against him because it introduced a redacted recording of his confession,
13 which materially misrepresented his statements to the jury. Petitioner asserts that 14 an evidentiary hearing is required. (Objection (Doc. 34) at 3 (citing Doody v Ryan, 15 649 F.3d 986, 1021 (9th Cir. 2011); Taylor v. Maddox, 366 F.3d 992, 1000 (9th Cir.
16 2004)).

20 STANDARD OF REVIEW

21
22 The duties of the district court in connection with an R&R by a Magistrate
23 Judge are set forth in Rule 72 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and 28
24 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). The district court may "accept, reject, or modify, in whole or in 25 part, the findings or recommendations made by the magistrate judge." Fed.R.Civ.P.
26

1 72(b); 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Where the parties object to an R&R, “[a] judge of 2 the [district] court shall make a de novo determination of those portions of the 3 [R&R] to which objection is made.” Thomas v. Arn, 474 U.S. 140, 149-50 (1985)
4 (quoting 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)).

5
6 This Court's ruling is a de novo determination as to those portions of the 7 R&R to which there are objections. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(C); Wang v. Masaitis,
8 416 F.3d 992, 1000 n. 13 (9th Cir.2005); United States v. Reyna-Tapia, 328 F.3d
9 1114, 1121-22 (9th Cir.2003) (en banc). To the extent that no objection has been 10 made, arguments to the contrary have been waived. Fed. R. Civ. P. 72; see 28
11 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1) (objections are waived if they are not filed within fourteen days
12 of service of the R&R), McCall v. Andrus, 628 F.2d 1185, 1187 (9th Cir. 1980)
13 (failure to object to Magistrate's report waives right to do so on appeal); see also 14 Advisory Committee Notes to Fed. R. Civ. P. 72 (citing Campbell v. United States
15 Dist. Court, 501 F.2d 196, 206 (9th Cir. 1974) (when no timely objection is filed,
16 the court need only satisfy itself that there is no clear error on the face of the record
17 in order to accept the recommendation)).
18
20

22 The parties were sent copies of the R&R and instructed that, pursuant to 28
23 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), they had 14 days to file written objections. See also, Fed. R.
24 Civ. P. 72 (party objecting to the recommended disposition has fourteen (14) days
25 to file specific, written objections). The Court has considered the objections made 26

1 by the Petitioner, and the parties' briefs considered by the Magistrate Judge in
2 deciding the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus.

3 OBJECTIONS

4 Evidentiary Hearing

5
6 In Petitioner's Objection to the R&R, he charges that the Magistrate Judge
7 erred in failing to order an evidentiary hearing to determine Petitioner's ineffective
8 assistance of counsel claims one and two and his false evidence claim five.

9
10 "Specific issues on which an evidentiary hearing is required in this case to resolve 11 disputed factual claims include, although are not necessarily limited to: (1) whether 12 Petitioner's counsel performed deficiently in failing to move to suppress 13 Petitioner's custodial statements to police; (2) whether Petitioner's counsel acted 14 unreasonably in failing to further investigate and challenge the initial location of 15 the weapons; and (3) whether Petitioner was prejudiced by these failures and 16 omissions." (Objection (Doc. 34) at 9.)
17

19 Petitioner argues he has established a "colorable" claim for relief on counts
20 one and two, and five, and he was never been accorded a state evidentiary hearing
21 on them. He asserts that Magistrate Judge Macdonald made the same mistake.

22
23 Petitioner asserts he is entitled to a hearing because he has established a colorable
24 claim, i.e., he has alleged facts which, if true, would entitle him to relief.

25
26 (Objection (Doc. 34) at 4.) This Court must decide "whether such a hearing could

1 enable [Petitioner] to prove the petition’s factual allegations.” Id. (citing Schriro v.
2 Landrigan, 550 U.S. 465, 474 (2007)).

3 The Court denies the Petitioner’s request for an evidentiary hearing because 4 he presents no evidence to suggest he could prove the Petition’s factual allegations
5 at such a hearing. As noted by the Magistrate Judge: “Judges are not like pigs,
6 hunting for truffles buried in briefs.” (R&R (Doc. 29) at 54 (quoting Christian
7 Legal Soc. Chapter of Univ. of Calif. V. Wu, 626 F.3d 483, 488 (9th Cir. 2010)).
8

10 In respect to counsel’s failure to investigate who located the guns and where 11 the guns were located, the record reflects that all the investigating officers believed 12 the guns were found on the top of the vehicle parked in the carport. Petitioner now
13 asserts that he “discovered evidence after trial that Sgt. Janes actually discovered 14 the weapons—contrary to Janes’ testimony at trial.” (Objection (Doc. 34) at 6.) In 15 his Objection, Petitioner complains that the Magistrate Judge found only a “bald
16 assertion” of this newly discovered evidence, but Petitioner still does not produce
17 the allegedly “discovered evidence.” A bald assertion will not enable the 18
19 Petitioner to prove this fact at an evidentiary hearing.
20

22 In respect to counsel’s failure to move to suppress his incriminating 23 statements, the failure to file a suppression motion does not constitute per se
24 ineffective assistance of counsel. Kimmelman v. Morrison, 477 U.S. 365, 381
25 (1986). It is undisputed that Petitioner was given Miranda warnings prior to 26

1 making his statements to police. His argument is that his waiver was contingent on
2 his agreeing to answer their questions if they answered his questions. About half 3 way through the interview, he asked about his brother and police put him off by 4 saying they would make inquiries and find out, but they knew his brother was dead.
5 Petitioner argues that he intended to waive his right to have an attorney present and 6 would act as his own attorney, and therefore, “police were not allowed to lie or 7 create gamesmanship.” (R&R (Doc. 29) at 29 (quoting Petition (Doc. 1) at 7.) It
8 is undisputed that the interviewing officers concealed the fact of his brother’s death
9 and used trickery during the interview.
10

12 The Court agrees with the State courts and the Magistrate Judge’s
13 conclusion that there was no Miranda violation. “Deception is [] a permitted tactic.
14 ‘Ploys to mislead a suspect or lull him into a false sense of security that do not rise
15 to the level of compulsion or coercion to speak are not within Miranda’s concerns.’”
16 Doody v. Ryan, 649 F.3d 986, 1046 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Illinois v. Perkins, 496 17 U.S. 292, 297 (1990)). “[T]rickery is not automatically coercion. Indeed, the 18 police commonly engage in such ruses as suggesting to a suspect that a confederate 19 has just confessed or that police have or will secure physical evidence against the 20 suspect.” Id. (quoting United States v. Crawford, 372 F.3d 1048, 1061 (9th Cir.
21 2004) (additional citations omitted)).
22
23
24
25
26

1 As the Magistrate Judge clearly outlined, the alleged quid pro quo promise
2 occurred at the beginning of the taped interview. Petitioner told the investigators 3 that he understood his rights and intended to act as his own attorney, that they
4 could ask him anything and he would ask them anything. If they stopped
5 answering, he would stop answering. They said: “ok.” The Court notes that there
6 was no promise by either party to answer truthfully. Prior to beginning
7 questioning about the incident, as noted by the Magistrate Judge, the detectives
8 expressly told Petitioner that there were no promises and if he wanted to stop
9 talking he could stop. Petitioner expressly told the detectives that he wanted to talk.
10 (R&R (Doc. 29) at 30-31.)
12
13

14 There was no Miranda violation. The record reflects that the statements
15 were voluntary. The Court agrees with the Magistrate Judge that the Arizona
16 courts got it right under clearly established federal law, Strickland v. Washington, 17 466 U.S. 668 (1984), when they concluded that counsel was not ineffective for 18 failing to file a motion to suppress. (R&R (Doc. 29) at 32.)
19

20 Petitioner’s false evidence claims, whether based on a due process violation,
21 Miller v. Pate, 386 U.S. 1 (1967), or a discovery violation, Brady v. Maryland, 373
22 U.S. 83 (1999), fail as well. Petitioner complains that the recording of his 23 statements made during his interview with police was redacted by the State in a 24 way that misrepresented facts and excluded favorable exculpatory statements. He 25

1 complains that he discovered this constitutional violation after his trial. To support
2 his false evidence claim, Petitioner submits two transcripts. “The two transcripts
3 (the 94-page transcript made by the State and the 117-page transcript made by the 4 Public Defender’s Office) were materially different” (Objection (Doc. 34) at 5 10) (emphasis in original). There is no Brady violation and no newly discovered
6 evidence because the 117-page transcript, which Petitioner asserts reflects the full
7 interview, was prepared by his attorney from the original recording which the State
8 produced to the defense. Petitioner’s own statement of the facts defeats the Brady
9 claim and any assertion of newly discovered evidence.
10

12 The Court turns to Petitioner’s assertion that his constitutional right to a fair 13 trial was violated by the presentation to the jury of the redacted recording of the 14 interview. He gives “some glaring examples”: 1) the 23 page difference; 2) 15 omitted references to Petitioner’s repeated requests about the condition of his 16 brother and petitioner being distraught; 3) the redacted transcript changed “I don’t 17 know where the .45 is” to “I know where the .45 is,” and 4) it excluded a plethora
18 of exculpatory statements. (Objection (Doc. 34) at 11.)
19
20
21

22 The difference in total pages between the two transcripts is not evidence of 23 a material difference. Beyond the allegedly “glaring examples,” above, the 24 Petitioner refers the Court to the State’s Response, Exhibit 7 pages 34-43, Exhibit
25 8 pages 1-43, and Exhibit 9, which is 27 pages long. Again, Petitioner invites the 26

1 Court to rut through the record. He does not refer the Court to where the redacted
2 recording left out his inquiries about his brother. The Court found the first inquiry,
3 as noted by the State in closing arguments, was about half way through both 4 transcripts. (Response (Doc. 11-7) at 34: TR at 147.) The Court did find the 5 discrepancy between the redacted transcript's change from "I don't know where 6 the .45 is" to "I know where the .45 is." The Court also stumbled across another
7 change from "In the time it takes to figure out what they've got in their hand,
8 they're already shooting you" to "I'm already shooting him." (Response (Doc. 11-9 8) at #57.) Petitioner fails to refer the Court to exculpatory evidence that was 10 omitted. The Court instead found that at least one exculpatory statement, I
11 "defended myself with lethal force," remained in the redacted transcript. Id. at # 12 22.

14 As the State courts noted, the redacted transcript was not given to the jury.
15
16 The jury listened to the redacted State-recording. Therefore, the jurors heard what 17 the Petitioner said, not what either of the two different transcribers heard. Playing 18 the recording for the jury nullified differences between the transcripts attributable 19 to the transcripts being prepared by two different transcribers, who apparently 20 heard the tape differently. For example, if he said "I don't know where the .45 is,"
21 not "I know where the .45 is" – the jury would have heard the former not the latter.
22
23 It would not matter what the State transcript read.
24
26

1 The Court agrees with the Magistrate Judge and the State courts: there was 2 no material difference between the redacted and unredacted transcripts and for the 3 most part differences between the transcripts were remedied by presenting the 4 recording to the jury. Petitioner fails to point the Court to any material omission in 5 the redacted recording and the Court has found none.
6

7 The differences between the two transcriptions fail to support Petitioner's
8 assertion that the State presented false evidence for a claim under Miller. The 9 Court can say with confidence that if the jury had heard the interview recording as 10 transcribed by the Defendant, it would not have produced a different verdict.
11

12 State Courts: Unreasonable Application of Clearly Established Federal Law
13

14 For the reasons explained above, the Magistrate did not err in finding that 15 the State courts did not unreasonably apply federal law. The State courts'
16 application of Strickland was reasonable because there was no clear argument that 17 the Petitioner's statements were involuntary. Likewise, Petitioner offers no clear
18 argument that further investigation would have revealed the guns were found
19 where he said they were found, on the ground. His trial attorney made a 20 reasonable strategic choice to challenge the evidence by showing that none of the 21 testifying officers were responsible for finding the guns, which forced the State to 22 admit in closing that it did not know how the guns got on top of the vehicle. In 23 large part, differences between the transcripts were nullified because the jury heard 24
26

1 the recording and did not rely on the State's transcript. To the extent there were
2 omissions in the redacted recording, the Petitioner has failed to refer the Court to
3 any material omission that would suggest any intent by prosecutors to present false
4 evidence. The Court finds that the State courts got it right, and likewise, the 5 Magistrate Judge got it right in finding the State courts reasonably applied federal 6 law.
7

8 CONCLUSION

9
10 After a de novo review of the issues raised in Petitioner's Objection, this 11 Court agrees with the findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the 12 Magistrate Judge in his R&R for determining the Petition for Writ of Habeas 13 Corpus. The Court adopts the R&R, and for the reasons stated in the R&R, the 14 Court denies the Petition.
15

16 Accordingly,

17
18 IT IS ORDERED that the Report and Recommendation (Doc. 29) is 19 adopted as the findings of fact and conclusions of law of this Court.
20

21 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus
22 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254 (Doc. 1) is DISMISSED, and the Clerk of the Court
23 shall enter Judgment, accordingly.
24

25 ////

26 ////

1 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Petitioner's Motion for a Certificate
2 of Appealability (Doc. 36) is GRANTED.

3 Dated this 11th day of January, 2016.
